Tabs When you open Photoshop, you see a navigation window on the left side of the screen called the `_workspace_` (also known as the `_canvas_` or the `_image window_`). By default, the workspace is set to `_Photoshop CS5_`, but later chapters in this book assume you are using Photoshop CS5, which makes tabbing through the chapters much easier. The workspace contains tools and panels on the left side and workspace on the right side. Each of these represents a different type of editing task or viewing options. You can use the navigation controls at the top of the workspace to navigate among them. Photoshop also offers a few customizable keyboard shortcuts as shortcuts to jump to certain points in the editing process. For example, if you press `-J` (Mac) or `-Ctrl+J` (PC), you jump to the next adjustment layer in your document. If you press `-Shift+L` (Mac) or `-Shift+Ctrl+L` (PC), you jump to the layers panel. If you press `-Ctrl+T` (

In which case, we don't know how it's going to be yet. Show spoiler (click to show) Been wondering too. I really don't see how it'd go to end with Fried and Rika on opposite sides. They've always loved each other though. Show spoiler (click to show) Those two, plus Rika's monster-like reaction to being told that Fried wouldn't tell her his true name, and the implication that it's far worse than Fried's curse implies, seems to be pointing to Fried having made some sort of Faustian bargain with the devil somewhere down the line. Rika can't seem to say it when they're in the same room because it seems to destroy her, but after that she said that it wasn't Fried, then saw Fried healed, and then the shot ended. Show spoiler (click to show) It was a Black Magic!! lol Quote: Her body was inside his coffin, and she's acting like she has a bad cold. She's just playing along. Quote: Fried and Rika were together. Rika's reaction there suggests that she's in love with Fried just as much as he is with her. Show spoiler (click to show) When she sees him healed, yes, but he's simply acting along with her. Quote: She didn't even ask what's wrong with his arm, she immediately started calling out to him. She might see through his disguise and she might not, but her desire to have him near her doesn't seem to be diminished in any way. I don't think she sees through him at all. Perhaps her belief that Fried wanted to trick her in some way stems from a reaction I've seen several times, where when suddenly seeing a children treated for infantile spasms. To find factors associated with favorable outcome, we reviewed an unselected series of children with infantile spasms treated during a 40-year period. Children with infantile spasms admitted to the authors' hospital during 1964-1992 were identified from the hospital database and from patient records. Pertinent clinical features of the patients and seizure outcomes were analyzed. Of 554 children with infantile spasms, outcome data were available for 531. The median follow-up was 7.4 years. Children who had West syndrome for at least 3 days had a higher chance of long-term control ( $P=0.005$ ), as did children with multiple spasms, infantile spasms not due to hypoxic brain injury, and the two oldest age groups. Among the variables tested, infantile spasms not due to hypoxic injury, presence of transient hypsarrhythmia, and good outcome with treatment were associated with a good long-term outcome, whereas the other variables were not. There was no relation to response to ACTH or chlorpromazine. All children received ACTH and phenobarbital, but 47% of the children received other antiepileptic drugs. Each treatment modality had a different spectrum of predictors of a good outcome. Overall, less than 30% of all children had a good long-term outcome. Infantile spasms represent a heterogeneous group of seizures, with a number of individual features that influence long-term control.

Q: Find all  $x \in \mathbb{R}^2$  for which the following system has only trivial solutions. Find all  $x \in \mathbb{R}^2$  for which the following system has only trivial solutions.

I have taken  $x = (x_1, x_2)$ , but i don't know how to determine such  $x$ . So
