Even though I tend to think that I'm a very simple person, I've always found it hard to manage multiple RSS feeds through multiple services (like Twitter, Facebook and Gmail). I decided to create a small project to simplify this process. CastleNews is a simple and intuitive RSS feed manager that allows users to quickly access all their feeds from one place. CastleNews helps you to read news topics from all of your favourite RSS and ATOM news feeds. Supported feed formats: RSS 0.91 RSS 1.0 RSS 2.0 ATOM 0.3 CastleNews Description: Even though I tend to think that I'm a very simple person, I've always found it hard to manage multiple RSS feeds through multiple services (like Twitter, Facebook and Gmail). I decided to create a small project to simplify this process. You gotta love WP, huh? If you're reading this file with an RSS reader (like Google Reader), I strongly suggest you to try CastleNews. What is CastleNews? CastleNews is a simple and intuitive RSS feed manager that allows users to quickly access all their feeds from one place. CastleNews helps you to read news topics from all of your favourite RSS and ATOM news feeds. Supported feed formats: RSS 0.91 RSS 1.0 RSS 2.0 ATOM 0.3 What are the supported RSS feeds? RSS 0.91 RSS 1.0 RSS 2.0 ATOM 0.3 You might have noticed that there's no HTML control for RSS feeds (that is if you're using Google Reader). So I decided to write my own and it's working great so far! I just love the new animation on the bottom of the screen. It doesn't seem to be new from WP but in every WP theme I've seen. I was worried about this part of the project, because I'm not a designer and I've never really been involved in web design projects, but thanks to this animation, the interface is looking really good. What else can I do? This is just a start, but you could add a few more features in the near future. Changelog

What's New In CastleNews?

===== You don't have to remember long URLs anymore to get a summary of all the news you read. CastleNews is a simple and intuitive RSS feed manager that lets you access all of your news feeds from one place. It's more efficient than opening many tabs to check each one. It also gets rid of "related posts" and "back to blog" or "return to blog" buttons that populate your browser's address bar. You can also hide unwanted posts by RSS setting.
===== Switch between Applets: Easily switch to the full screen mode by a click on the button. Extend articles width: Configure which width to be used by default when viewing articles. Hide "top" and "next" links: Hide the "top" and "next" links if you already read that article. Display per Feed: Make the list of news per feed displayed in a separate page, so it is easier to manage multiple feeds from a single page. Filter news: Sorting news isn't fun! CastleNews tries to make it a lot easier. Use the various filtering options to quickly find articles you're interested in. Sort on the left side: Sort a simple way, so you don't have to open up the site. Display by date: The default display of CastleNews is by date. The display of CastleNews can be controlled by a number of filters, so you can quickly get to the feeds you are interested in. Per-Feed Settings: Each feed can be displayed with a number of options: Maintain a short link: If this option is enabled, then the short link is maintained for each feed. It's used by CastleNews as the link to the web page when you click on it. This is not the preferred option, but it's compatible with all your extensions. Hide the name and summary: Sometimes you prefer to see only the images of the article. If you enable this option, then only the images of articles will be displayed. Display date: Changing the display of news will help you to read them faster. By default, the articles are displayed by date, but you can easily filter it by day, week or month. Display date and name: You can display articles by both date and name, so it is easier to focus on a single feed and not be bothered by the other ones. Display date and summary: You can display articles by both
