Q: How can I use my grayscale raster data in QGIS 2.18? I have a pair of GIBS grayscale raster images (RGB is an option) which I need to have stored so that I can use them for further analysis in QGIS 2.18. I have had look at the GDAL shapefile conversion, but there are a number of issues with exporting the GDAL format. I'm unsure if I can use a Python script to convert the data to a shapefile. Can anyone recommend any other options for me? A: In QGIS, you can use the Raster to vector tool to convert grayscale images to vector. Open the tool and select the input data that has to be vectorized (Output) Select the Grayscale of your input raster (Input) To manually set the color palette of the output vector, use the "Layers/Add layer/Color coding" menu It is generally known to decorate cakes, pastries, and the like with various types of bakery decorations, such as, for example, edible sprinkles. Traditionally, small items of baked goods and pastries are decorated by hand, such as by a baker or baker's helper. The baker or baker's helper prepares a mixture of dried ingredients including edible sprinkles and manually places the mixture on the cake or pastry being decorated. The baker or baker's helper uses a pastry tool, such as a spatula, to spread and shape the mixture as desired. The mixture is then baked or otherwise processed to set the edible sprinkles in the desired configuration. The processed mixture is then baked again to further set the edible sprinkles. Alternatively, the mixture may be baked or otherwise processed to set the edible sprinkles before being placed on the cake or pastry. One drawback to using edible sprinkles directly on the cake is that a decorative layer of the edible sprinkles does not remain on the cake after the cake or pastry is eaten. In other words, the edible sprinkles fall off of the cake or pastry when the cake or pastry is eaten. It is known to form edible decoration layers on the external surfaces of cakes, pastries, and the like, using a glaze. Cake decorations, also referred to as cake icings, are known to include dyes, pigments, and similar coloring compounds. Typically, the dyes are added to the food coloring

Reports: Los Angeles Police Officer Killed in Shootout LAPD Officer wounded in shootout. Officer killed. By RedForth Created 11/13/2012 - 7:05pm APD Officer shot in shootout with suspect. Photo: Getty Images (CNN) -- The Los Angeles Police Department said a Los Angeles police officer has been shot and killed in a shootout with a suspect, a police source told CNN. Police said the fatal shooting happened in the West Los Angeles neighborhood of Newcomb shortly before 8 p.m. Monday (7 p.m. ET). They said the suspect fled in a vehicle, but was later taken into custody. Two other officers were shot and wounded and taken to the hospital, according to the Los Angeles Police Department. Police have only identified one of the injured officers as "a sergeant" but say they were in stable condition. The LAPD said the officer sustained injuries not considered life-threatening. One of the shot officers was transported in critical condition and the other was in stable condition, the LAPD said. Police said the shooting involved one suspect who attempted to run away from the scene after the officers arrived. "The officer (who) was killed in the line of duty was a Los Angeles Police Department officer that was sent to the location to investigate a suspicious vehicle," said LAPD Chief Charlie Beck said at a news conference Monday night. "He encountered the person in the suspect vehicle. After an exchange of gunfire, the suspect fled the vehicle and subsequently was taken into custody," he said. "The other officers involved in the shooting have been transported to the hospital and they are receiving treatment for what was initially described as non-life-threatening injuries," he said. "I can assure you that the officers were absolutely on the right side of things here," Beck said. Beck said the department would "not hesitate to release the name of the officer who was involved in the line of duty" if the officer's family wanted him named at the time of his death. "The officers who responded were brave and acted heroically," Beck said. "They prevented this from being more than it is." Beck said "it's too early to tell" why the man was killed. It appears that this officer-involved shooting occurred after a domestic dispute, the LAPD said. It remains unclear what led to the domestic dispute. The LAPD said the officers were responding
