My 2 cents: I'm leaving a bit before i'm ready to agree. While the concept of buying a game with these "surprise" incentives does sound like a good idea, I have some doubts about the execution of the implementation in this particular case. I understand the concept, I just wish the implementation was executed a bit better. To be fair, however, i'm not even certain the concept of the "surprise" is actually novel. I have trouble believing that a casual fan doesn't have better things to do than wade through a dozen vague in-game tips and menus to see what this game has to offer. ! Pouf, naturellement? De la bonne. Donc, comment mon pouf a-t-il été réstéré? L'initiative remonte à l'an dernier, quand j'ai été prise par un déluge de colis liés à une expédition en Tchoudjakovo, en Crimée. Ça fait quelques années que je suis vraiment débordée, j'ai décidé de prendre de la distance, pour pouvoir trouver un nouveau mode de vie. Malheureusement, j'ai toujours du stress avec les colis, ça dérange pas mal l'organisation. J'ai réalisé que si je me concentrais sur autre chose, cela m'aiderait beaucoup. Que ça se soit un cluster, un livre, une bouteille de vin... Mais tout aussi craintif, mon cas était différent. Moi, les colis m'intéressaient plus. J'ai eu une idée, au moment où j'avais déjà retrouvé les moyens logiques de pouvoir les fabriquer en cas d'incertitude. Là, ça laissait à d'autres le soin de se couvrir des petites merveilles aussitôt. Moi, j'étais là pour le pouvoir! Ensuite, j'ai trouvé quelqu'un sur le forum qui s'intéressait, Jonka, et le contact a vite été réalisé. Il est resté très téméraire, j'imagine que c'est lié à la peur de ne pas en avoir assez. Je lui ai suggéré, face à son dédain, que ça vienne dans mon canapé-poubelle. C'est alors que j'ai amené mon canapé
