With the.Â· Human Rights Watch is investigating reports of Russian soldiers mistreating, abusing and sexually assaulting ethnic Georgians in the Republic of South Ossetia, Human Rights Watch said today. Human Rights Watch has interviewed several former and current residents of South Ossetia who reported that Russian troops invaded the Tskhinvali region in the early morning on August 7, 2008. They said the soldiers searched local homes, stealing money and other property. Some were taken to detention centers, others forced to remain in the streets of Tskhinvali until their return to their homes the following day. One woman said that soldiers refused to offer her medical treatment for a sprained ankle until she agreed to have sex with one. Another said a soldier told her, "[Y]ou're a woman. I'll show you where to go and sleep tonight." "The Russian military is investigating these cases, but that's not enough," said Steve Swerdlow, senior researcher for Europe at Human Rights Watch. "The Kremlin's refusal to prosecute the soldiers involved violates international laws against torture and 0cc13bf012
