What's new:

-104 Sonata Arctica - Castles Crown (Ost) Notes I'm sure we all heard the Vocaloid songs while growing up – all those songs that make us go all George Harrison on Vocaloid fans at one point. It came to my attention that people had been singing along to Sonata Arctica songs while watching the latest film, Sailor Moon Crystal. The only problem was their harmonies are difficult to discern. There's the occasional guitar solo, a vocalist voice is off by itself in the mix, and vocals mixing with instrumentation is pure chaos. With Cat's stage play and Mew's song in All Out of Love, the duo are making a comeback on castles crown. Joining vocalists Sasha Blue (Pale Emperor Diamond, a.k.a. Sanrek) and Arisa Shimizu (Your Lie – The Vocal), are the lead vocalists Matt Heafy and Tarja Turunen (ex-Nightwish). We're going to be doing the song in 7D with cats night attire, incase you didn't know what that means. Regardless of the gender of the singer, the first verse is easy to discern though. The second verse has more character...more recognizable vocals, and is a little more you know, challenging to pull off. The place of the song in Sailor Moon Crystal's story is a bit hazy, but it's at least complete. Stay tuned as we see where this parada continues. Until then, Fall in love and listen to this in 7D. Comments I was quite interested in this as a child. Preteen me found it great for anything anime. Had a lot of filler, but still a great stream in high speeds or for podcasts. -might try to catch up some of the shows in collection -not much of a TV show guy -doesnt really watch mainstream stuff usually unless it is SF or fantasy -really wanted Sailor Moon as a kid, before watching it The anime fit well as a half hour filler during the day or before bed. Not much to it except the action and a little singing. I enjoyed it much more than original series, so much so, I followed Sonata into more bands. Listened many live performances. Never watched the TV series, but I really want to now. Must be different from their live show.
