Field of the Invention The present invention relates to systems and methods for managing and executing transactions over a network. 2. Description of the Related Art Over the last decade, the use of the Internet has grown exponentially. This growth has been fueled in large part by the introduction of the world wide web, which allows users to easily navigate their computer systems to view data, communicate with each other, and shop. The use of the Internet for commerce has also grown rapidly. Businesses are now able to sell products directly to consumers over the Internet. Moreover, the use of interactive forms over the Internet has now become commonplace. Through such interactive forms, consumers are able to submit requests to businesses, such as requests for services, product information, and the like. Despite the current level of usage of the Internet, there remains a number of deficiencies in the current systems and methods for managing and executing transactions over a network. For example, it would be advantageous to be able to provide a more secure form of user authentication in order to prevent unauthorized access to user account information. It would also be advantageous to be able to ensure a form which can be easily understood by the intended recipient of the transaction. Similarly, it would be advantageous to be able to reduce the number of data elements which need to be submitted during the transaction. It would also be advantageous to be able to ensure that the transaction is executed only once. It would be further advantageous to be able to ensure that both parties to the transaction are satisfied with the transaction. It would be still further advantageous to be able to provide a system which allows businesses to automatically enter into an agreement with customers. #ifndef BOOST_MPL_MAP_HPP_INCLUDED #define BOOST_MPL_MAP_HPP_INCLUDED // Copyright Aleksey Gurtovoy 2002-2004 // // Distributed under the Boost Software License, Version 1.0. // (See accompanying file LICENSE_1_0.

The trouble is, even though I have set fill_factor = 0.25, the colors are coming out as 1 in the background. I also have tried aes(fill =.group..., colour =.group..) But that doesn't do anything. This is how I want it: I would like each facet to have a different color but the underlying background to be the same as the background color on the x axis. Thanks in advance A: You need to create a new variable for the group you are using in the fill argument. library(ggplot2) ggplot(mtcars, aes(x=cyl 0cc13bf012
