I read at that because I didn't have the D or the ED with the transaction, I lost the contribution deadline for 2017 tax year. What is the function of D and ED in the Roth IRA robo rollover process? Is there anything I can do to avoid the loss of deadline? A: D and ED are expiration dates that are used to determine the time your IRA rollover starts in order to qualify for a rollover contribution deadline extension. Your IRA is currently calculated between the ages of 59-1/2 and 70, normally ending December 31st, so for 2016, the deadline for 2017 contributions would be April 30th. However, the IRA rollover deadline extension helps lower your tax liability from the time period for 2016, during which your IRA is calculated, through the time for 2017 during which the IRA is actually rolled over. The extension is applied so that, assuming you maintain a pre-tax account and rollover when you calculate for 2017, your IRA will qualify for your 2017 contribution. In short, you can still apply for the contribution, just don't file the forms until you receive them in the mail and make sure you do it by the April 30, 2017 deadline. Q: Where should I put bean initializing logic? I have an object called User which provides a general interface. Where can I put the code which initializes this User object and returns it? Obviously, as it's a constructor, I can't call it from the public constructor of this User object. I would also have to call the logic on the initialize method to return it as well
