But today the Internet is overrun.Q: Save Cell as PDF in Google Drive using Java I'm using Google Drive-sdk to create a spreadsheet and then convert it to a PDF. This works fine, but I need a code that saves the cell content as a PDF, without the format. I'm searching for something that looks like:

if(mycell.getContent() == "text") {

 Thanks for your help A: Instead of file.save() try to use File body.saveAs() since this is what you're after. It's method signature is: `/ * Saves this {@link File} as a new, empty file. * * An empty {@link File} is a file whose contents are undefined. * * This method overwrites the currently open {@link File} without prompting the user. * If you want to add comments to the new {@link File}, you must open the new * {@link File} with {@link #open(File)}. * c6a93da74d`
